Fourteen Cases and One Death Address Issued by League for Use in Doubtful States

With diphtheria cases once more on the increase, the City Health Department issued a general warning yesterday recommending careful attention to all throat disorders. In November are given in an address yeary case of this kind, Dr. C. C. Hudson, of the department, advises a competent physician should be conceived at once, since the most infective types of diphtheria are often mistaken by patients for minor affections of the throat.

The warning comes as the result tions of the throat.

The warning comes as the result of the regular seasonal increase in the number of cases reported. Up to yesterday fourteen cases of diphtheria to the notice of the Hasith Department and placed under surveillance. Two cases of laryngeal diphtheria, the most malignant type of the disease, were reported last week.

The address quotes the words of President Taft and suggests that has the President Deen a statesman he would have said instead: "Tour people are told that if they help put the Democrats in power, they may take away your rights by repealing the diphtheria, the most malignant type of the disease, were reported last week. would have said instead: "Your peo-ple are told that if they help put the Democrats in power, they may take away your rights by repealing the fifteenth amendment or declaring it unconstitutional. "It will be easy to recall the immense public meeting arranged in New York City by Booker T. Wash'ngton and other friends, to welcome home York City by Booker T. Washington and other friends, to welcome home the lion hunter from the wilds of Africa. In this meeting the great negro leader from Alabama pledged the negro vote to Roosevelt, if he would run again for President. From that day and hour Teddy, with renewed vigor, set his machinery in motion for the Republican nomination for President in 1912. for President in 1912.

motion for the Republican holimatories for President in 1912.

"But Booker T. and his friends were unable to deliver the goods at Chicago, for the Southern negro delegates stood like a stone wall for Taft. In a fit of bitter disappointment at Washington's failure to redeem the pledge made in the New York meeting, Roceevelt immediately suggested the disgranchissment of Southern colored voters, and while all these things are transpiring, the Alabama educator is as silent as the grave. We shall venture to break his ominous silence by requiring of him bow he would advise his race to vote, so as to reap the greatest benefit for Taft, Boosevelt or Wilson. If Washington were to practice what he teaches in his books and public addresses, he would advise his people to vote for Wilson, notwithstanding the fact that Wilson is a Democrat, for Wilson's election is demanded by the peculiar conditions in which the country now finds its affairs. To change these conditions a progressive man must be elected, who is not obligated to the money power by promises, nor by former or present contributions of funds for campaign purposes. The man singled out to make this change for the people is Woodrow Wilson."

Three amendments to the Constitu-tion are to be voted on in November. To one of these there seems no op-position. It is designed to permit the General Assembly to provide other people, and shall be eligible to succeed themselves indefinitely.

The Constitution now permits the General Assembly to decide whether commissioners shall be chosen by the commissioners shall be chosen by the people or appointed by the courts, and specifies that if elected, they may not succeed themselves. It was designed to prevent commissioners working for their own re-election by favoring influential taxpayers in making tax valuations, while the limitation of treasurers was intended to fix a time when they must make final and actual settlement of their accounts. There is much opposition to these two amendments.
